FORESEEABLE GOOD RETURNS FOR INVESTORS

Cambodia's average return on equity (ROE) has been reported to have improved this year and insiders predict that the country will attract more foreign direct investment as investor confident in the kingdom strengthens. Cambodia is perceived to be the country to offer the best investment returns in 2017 for the Asian region.

According to a survey conducted at the recent Asian Financial Forum in Hong Kong, which saw a congregation of influential members of the global financial and business community, Cambodia received a seven percent ROE rating in 2017 – up by two percentage points compared to the year before, placing Cambodia on par with Malaysia and Myanmar. The general perception and opinion towards Cambodia remain good.

CAMBODIA ECONOMY REMAINS STEADY; RESILIENT TO SHIFTS

The World Bank estimated GDP growth in the Cambodia stood at 7% for 2016, and forecast a growth potential of between 6.8-6.9% for the next three years.

Asia's largest economy is expanding in real terms, especially compared to developed economies in the West. The World Bank's forecast of high future real GDP growth in China should be an encouraging sign for the Kingdom. Meanwhile, the National Bank of Cambodia (NBC) has revealed that foreign direct investment (FDI) into Cambodia grew by 25percentage points to a hefty $2.15 billion last year. The report detailed that $539 million went to the banking sector and $370 million to real estate. The rest went into other sectors including manufacturing, agriculture, food and accommodation, mining operations, information and communications technology, the electrical sector and others.

CAMBODIA IS DEFINITELY MOVING AHEAD
